Mom and I go to the pet store. We bring our dog, Toby. The groomer is going to wash Toby and give him a haircut! Mom and I walk through the store. I see a bone on a shelf. I ask, "Can we buy this bone for Toby?" Mom says, "Yes." I put the bone in the shopping cart. We look for dog food. We see Mr. John. He is a dog trainer. He taught Toby how to sit. Mr. John also taught Toby how to shake hands and rollover! Mr. John always has dog treats in his pockets. He gives me a treat to give Toby.

Mom and I find the dog food. She puts it in the cart. "Toby's collar is getting too small. Let's find him a new collar," says Mom. A woman wearing a Pet Store uniform asks, "Can I help you find anything?" Mom says, "Yes. We are looking for a new dog collar." The woman points and says, "You will find collars over there." Mom lets me choose the new collar for Toby. I choose a collar with dog bones on it! Toby loves dog bones. Mom says, "Good job! Let's go pay." We go to the front of the store and stand in line.

The cashier scans the bone, the dog food, and the collar. Mom pays for Toby's haircut, too. The cashier puts everything in bags. He takes her money and gives back change. Mom tells him, "Thank you!" We get Toby from the groomer. He smells clean and has shorter hair. He looks so different! Toby sniffs for the treat Mr. John gave me. I give Toby the treat and he licks my face! Mom tells the groomer, "Thank you." Then Mom, Toby, and I leave the store.
